Optimize your Workflows with Dropbox

Abstract: This presentation will take you through a contractor's journey on how the introduction of Dropbox allowed them to increase their productivity, reduce costs and obtain sustainability goals. In addition to the contractor's journey, we will also take you through a specific use case to showcase the value Dropbox can deliver in enhancing your workflows.

Bio: Shirin Arnold is the Principal Industry Solutions Lead for Construction at Dropbox. Shirin joined Dropbox at the end of 2021 from Autodesk where she held several key positions in sales and product. She was a Technical Solutions Executive for the AEC industry as well as a Group Product Manager driving the BIM 360 Field Management solutions forward. Even though she holds a Master's in Structural Engineering from Stanford University, she has always leaned towards the construction industry. Her interest in construction led her straight to a boots on the ground position, with a major general contractor as a project engineer where her interest flourished. She has held various product management positions from Credit Suisse to Graphisoft where she has been able to continue to influence the construction industry.
